What is Consent?

Consent is the most misunderstood concept in comprehending the issues around interpersonal violence. Learning how to talk about consent, gain consent or refuse consent can help clarify each person’s responsibility to minimize the risk of unwanted sexual contact.

CONSENT IS …

- An active, voluntary, informed, mutual, honest verbal agreement: Consent cannot be coerced
- A process, which must be asked for every step of the way. If you want to move to the next level of sexual intimacy, just ask
- Never implied and cannot be assumed, even in the context of a relationship. Just because you are in a relationship does not mean that you have permission to have sex with your partner

Circumstances in which a person, CANNOT, by law, give consent: (no matter what s/he might verbalize)

- The person is severely intoxicated or unconscious as a result of alcohol or drugs
- The person is physically or mentally disabled
- Once a person says “no”

It does not matter if or what kind of sexual behavior has happened previously.

It does not matter if it is a current long-term relationship, a broken relationship, or marriage.

If one partner says, “NO,” and the other forces penetration, it is rape.

What does consent mean in intimate relationships?

Consent is when one person agrees to or gives permission to another person to do something.

- It means agreeing to an action based on your knowledge of what that action involves, it’s likely consequences, and having the option of saying no.

  The absence of “no” does not mean “yes”.

- When it comes to sex in your relationship, both have a responsibility to make sure that each person feels safe and comfortable every step along the way.

Consent is an important part of healthy sexuality and both people should be involved in the decision to have sex.
Get Consent EVERY TIME!

KISSING DOESN’T ALWAYS NEED TO LEAD TO SEX

There are different types of intimacy, like holding hands, writing love notes, kissing, hugging, massage, and actually having sex. Kissing and getting intimate does not need to lead to sex.

Everyone has the right to say “no” and everyone has the right to change their mind at any time regardless of their past experiences with other people or the person they are with.

THE PERKS OF CONSENT

- Asking for and obtaining consent shows that you have respect for both yourself and your partner
- Enhances communication, respect, and honesty, which make sex and relationships better
- Ability to know and be able to communicate the type of sexual relationship you want
- Knowing how to protect yourself and your partner against STIs and pregnancy
- Opportunity to acknowledge that you and your partner(s) have sexual needs and desires
- Identify your personal beliefs and values and respecting your partner’s personal beliefs and values
- Builds confidence and self-esteem
- Challenges stereotypes that rape is a women’s issue
- Challenges sexism and traditional views on gender and sexuality
- Positive views on sex and sexuality are empowering
- Eliminates the entitlement that one partner might feel over another. Neither your body nor your sexuality belong to someone else
WHAT IF THE PERSON YOU’RE WITH IS TOO OUT OF IT TO GIVE CONSENT?

Drugs and alcohol can affect people’s ability to make decisions, including whether or not they want to be sexual with someone else. This means that if someone is really out of it, they cannot give consent.

Being with them in a sexual way when they don’t know what is going on is the same as rape.

HOW DO YOU KNOW IF THE PERSON YOU’RE WITH HAS GIVEN THEIR CONSENT?

The only way to know for sure if someone has given consent is if they tell you. One of the best ways to determine if someone is uncomfortable with any situation, especially with a sexual one, is to simply ask. Here are some examples of the questions you might ask:

- Is there anything you don’t want to do?
- Are you comfortable?
- Do you want to stop? Slow down?
- Do you want to go further?

CONSENT & BYSTANDER INTERVENTION

If you see a friend who is out of it and is being intimate with someone, you should pull them aside and try your best to make sure that person is safe and knows what he or she is doing.

If it’s the opposite situation, and your friend is trying to engage in a sexual encounter with someone who is out if it, you should try to pull them aside and stop them from getting themselves into trouble.

RECOGNIZING NON-VERBAL COMMUNICATION

There are many ways of communicating. The look on someone’s face and their body language is also a way of communicating and often has more meaning than the words that come out of their mouth.

Here are some ways body language can let you know if the person you’re with is not comfortable with what is happening:

- Not responding to your touch
- Pushing you away
- Holding their arms tightly around their bodies
- Turning away from you or hiding their face
- Stiffening muscles

Asking questions and being aware of body language: Any time you are unsure of your partners desires then you should stop what you are doing and talk to them about it.

SLOWING THINGS DOWN

Below are some things you can say to slow things down if you feel that things are moving too quickly.

- I don’t want to go any further than kissing, hugging, touching.
- Can we stay like this for a while?
- Can we slow down?

STOPPING

You always have the right to say “no” and you always have the right to change your mind at any time: Here are some things you can say or do if you want so stop:

- Say “No”
- Say “I want to stop”
- Say “I need to go to the bathroom/toilet”
- In a situation where the other person isn’t listening to you and you feel unsafe, you could pretend you are going to vomit. (It’s amazing how quickly someone moves away from you if they think you are going to be sick).
